American forces on Okinawa had scarcely a mile to go today to reach the southernmost end of Okinawa, where the battle for complete control of that strategic island was expected to be in its last week.

At the same time, other elements of the U. S. Tenth Army sought to push out the last core of enemy resistance on the Yaeju-Dake escarpment. Pushing ahead from Nakaza town, which is situated about 1,000 yards from the island's east end, two regiments of the Seventh Division's Infantry advanced on key heights on the southern end of Okinawa.

One column bore down upon Hill 53 to the west of Nakaza, and another on the east.

Rationing Board Gets Treble Damages

DOYLESTOWN, June 16—Another Price Administrator's treble damage claim has been negotiated by the Price Panel of the local War Price and Rationing Board. A money order for $73.78 is on its way to the Treasurer of the United States and another for $36.89 will be sent to the complainant as a refund for the overcharge on a used oil stove sold by H. A. Pickering & Son, Garfieldville.

Information which led to the investigation of the sale of this stove came from Mrs. Agnetta Nielsen, Gradyville, Pa. The Price Panel reviewed the facts and found that Mr. Pickering had violated the OPA ceiling price regulation in making this sale and had overcharged his customer in the amount of $36.89. In view of the fact that his was not Mr. Pickering's first offense, the board said, the maximum settlement of three times the amount of the overcharge was requested.

On commodities such as used oil stoves, the OPA ceiling price is 5% of the price of the same or a similar article new, provided the used article is in first class condition. Otherwise, the ceiling is 13 1/3% of the new price. All such articles must be tagged by a dealer giving the class, ceiling price, and selling price.

Polish Representative En Route To Moscow

London—Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former premier of the Polish Government in Exile, and J. A. Stanczyk, were en route to Moscow today by plane to attend the conference on the reorganization of the Warsaw Government.

Definite assurance that the conference of Polish leaders with representatives of the Big Three would get under way over the week-end was seen in their departure for the Russian capital.

The conference originally was scheduled to start yesterday. Their departure was delayed until today in the hope that Wincenty Witos, aged Polish peasant leader, might recover sufficiently from his illness to fly to the meeting.

Big Three representatives in Moscow attached great importance to the presence of Witos at the Polish talks. A message was sent the ailing Polish peasant leader urging him to attend.

Meanwhile a spokesman for the executive branch of the Polish Socialist Party declared that Stanczyk was going to Moscow on "his own responsibility" and that he did not represent the party.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Admitted Officially

Washington, June 16—THE abnormal sensitivity of the worshippers of the late Mr. Roosevelt is such that any effort to be realistic about him and his several administrations and campaigns causes violent outbursts of rage, well streaked with vituperation and abuse. The idea seems to be that it is sacrilegious to suggest that anything he did was short of perfect.

A FEW days ago a statement in this column to the general effect that Mr. Truman's appointments had tended to increase governmental efficiency (which certainly is obvious) brought a lovely letter from a lady (undoubtedly a lady) which engagingly began with the salutation, "You loathsome beast."

This is typical of the frame of mind into which the more emotional have worked themselves. Perhaps recent disclosure of Elliott Roosevelt's $200,000 loan obtained from a big business man, with the direct aid of his father and which the "Roosevelt family," using Mr. Jesse Jones as the instrument, "settled" for $4,000, thus putting Elliott $196,000 ahead, may restore the sense of proportion of the more balanced. It should, because it seems that this incident is as shabby as any in White House history.

However, at the risk of provoking more such charming epistles as mentioned above, it seems worth while to touch upon a subject from which heretofore ardent Roosevelt admirers have shied, though all save the most obtuse must know the facts.

THIS is the political debt which Mr. Roosevelt owed to the Negroes in ten or more pivotal states essential to election. It has been the contention of the practical politicians that in these states—New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Missouri—the Negro vote, which prior to 1936 had been 25 per cent a basic Republican asset, has been almost solidly transferred to the Democratic side—and that without those votes Mr. Roosevelt could not have

PROPAGANDA

There are many points of interest about the recent report by Attorney General Biddle on foreign propaganda—a government release from the departing Attorney General which received little public attention.

The report is the result of the operations of the Alien Registration Law, which requires foreign propagandists to register with the Department of Justice.

A total of 161 organizations so registered. They conceded that they were in the United States spending foreign money trying to tell Americans what to think and believe.

While much of their activities were determined by the Department of Justice to be purely of the good-will, information and friendship type, there were many instances when their work was directed at influencing American public opinion on specific controversies.

The total which the records show as having been spent were respectable—although of course a drop in the bucket compared by the vast propaganda expenditures of the New Deal agencies.

Approximately $5,000,000 of foreign money was expended by these foreign agents in the last year.

This, from our own Washington point of view, is strictly retail trade. It has been said, and not denied, that the State Department alone spent $75,000,000 "selling" the Good Neighbor policy to our Latin American neighbors; spent that sum in purely publicity work, not counting the vast cost of the special-favor trade and other devices which also were used.

On the records, England spent most—a total of $2,143,000 through its Information Service.

This may prove that England did the most propagandizing—or merely that the English are a little more inclined to be candid about their operations.

Certainly some of the others got a lot for their money if their accountings as reported really cover all that was laid on the line.

The London Polish "exiles" spent $850,000; the Netherlands $530,000; Belgium $432,000 and France $347,000.

But the most surprising touch in the report, when it is first noted, is that Soviet Russia spent not a dime.

Considering the amount of Russian propaganda which has been turned loose on the United States, it is of course obvious that a great deal of time and energy has been put into the job by someone—whether or not he and his associates were working for nothing.

General Biddle has a quick explanation for this point—but like some of his other explanations, it just doesn't explain.

"The Soviet Union," says General Biddle, "does not maintain an official information agency in this country but conducts parallel activities by other means."

How nice! Congress passes a law to let us know which foreign nations are propagandizing in America during the war and how much they are spending—and our chief law enforcement man tells us blandly that one of the most important jobs of publicity can't be included because the nation concerned is using "parallel activities!"

This isn't the first time General Biddle has reached surprising conclusions about what laws mean. He reached one in the Montgomery Ward case, and another when Sidney Hillman was using the PAC to build up a labor-

FATHER'S DAY

Father once again is a trifle embarrassed. When it comes to Mother's Day he takes part wholeheartedly and with enthusiasm. But when Father's Day rolls around, the head of the house becomes quite skittish. He is prone to look upon the whole thing as sort of unnecessary and "too much."

But Father deserves his day, too. He's done a good job this last year. It's been a tough year. Many a father is worried about his sons in the service, but he tries to keep it to himself and keeps smiling about it.

The worry and the strain and the burden have told on him and he looks older. But as badly as he needs a vacation, he won't take one. He looks upon the thing as his job to carry through. And so he is going on working, trying to keep his spirits high, keeping his worries to himself.

JAPAN'S TRUMPS

In the air over the Japanese homeland American pilots are learning once again that it is never safe to underestimate the enemy. Hit hard and often, knocked groggy on land, sea and in the air, the Japs still have some tricks left up their sleeve. For months the Japanese have been suffering terrible losses in the air. Thousands of their planes have been destroyed, their aviation factories and airfields have been blasted, and the quality of the enemy pilots met over the Philippines and Okinawa has been deteriorating.

In recent sweeps over Japan, however, carrier pilots of the American Third Fleet have been meeting enemy planes and airmen of a surprisingly different caliber. Crack Jap pilots flying new and better planes are, in the words of one American officer "thumping their noses" at American airmen. Their ships are described as "superior to our own" in "speed and maneuverability" and their pilots have developed a new and spectacular combat technique which is giving American fliers plenty of trouble.

Perhaps it should not be surprising that the Japanese have been carefully hoarding their "first-string" planes and pilots for the crucial air battles over their homeland. An air force short of ships and fliers would be foolish not to save its best for the decisive battles. The one remaining hope of the Japs, since they cannot match the American air armada in numbers, is to catch it by surprise and attempt to inflict such staggering losses that it will give up the struggle.

This hope will fail. But the fact that the Japanese have by no means shot their bolt in the air and that they are able to produce planes and pilots capable of meeting American planes and pilots on equal terms should help to prevent undue complacency over American air superiority. The sky battle over Japan is not over. It is just reaching its climax as the Japanese start to throw in their trump cards.

boss-controlled political war chest in defiance of the intent of the Federal Statutes.

Congress could do a service by digging in and finding out just what sort of Communist intrigue really is hidden by Biddle's glib words—"parallel activities by other means."

Of course, Biddle could have said something else much more illuminating and to the point:

Russia hasn't needed paid propagandists so long as New Dealers like Harry Hopkins, Henry Wallace and a host of others were on the job.

Ever since President Roosevelt, early in his term, froze the American foreign policy by demanding the recognition of Russia instead of building up the League of Nations, Russia has had easy channels for what press agents call "complete coverage" in its propaganda work.

A public relations staff would want thousands of dollars just to put on the air waves a line which Wallace tossed off the other night, that Russia is not a dictatorship at all, but a sadly misunderstood "economic democracy."

If Stalin can get that sort of service gratis, why would anyone expect him to pay for an official information agency?

Gifts Given Patients At The Naval Hospital

Three members of the American Auxiliary of Robert W. Ken Post, paid a visit to the patients in the Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, on Wednesday. The included Mrs. Earl McEuen, Harold H. Dettmer and Mrs. Bert Clark, Jr.

Today's Quiet Moment

By Rev. Arthur D. Sargis
Pastor
Eddington Presbyterian Church

Dear Father, we thank Thee for this week which is so fast drawing to a close. Forgive the sins we have committed against Thee—for against Thee and Thee only have we sinned. Forgive us for Jesus' sake. We thank Thee that Thou art our Father. That is such a loving word. We thank Thee that it originates in the heart. We love Thee, dear Father. Thou hast taught us when we pray to say, "Our Father." We thank Thee that Thou hast caused man to be placed in a family relationship. So we thank Thee for our homes, our loved ones, our parents. But especially at this time, we thank Thee for our fathers—our dads. May we never forget Thy commandment to "Honor thy father and thy mother." May we not obey that "thy days may be long upon the land," but may we obey out of sheer gratitude for what they are to us. They love us and, therefore, they do for us. We love them, and now thank Thee for them, and, therefore, we will do for them. Forgive us for ever neglecting our parents. Teach us to know that "gratitude is the memory of the soul." Bless all of our family relationships and, at this particular time, we give Thee special thanks for our earthly fathers. We pray in the Name of the One Who said, "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit." Amen.

Ray Rudy Led Diamond
Boys at The Bat

The Diamond team halted the five-game winning streak of the Badenhausen team last evening in a Bristol Suburban League game on Leedom's field. Final score was: Diamond, 5; Badenhausen, 3. Despite the loss, the Badies are still one full game in the lead in the league race.

"Linn" Wolvin hurled the Diamond boys to the triumph. He gave up seven hits and after his mates scored three runs in the fourth to take the lead, he was invincible and handed out goose-eggs the remainder of the tilt.

Ray Rudy, an ex-Marine, led the Diamond team with the stick, getting three hits in four trips to the plate while Bob Hughes and Wolvin both had a pair of hits. Wolvin had two official times at bat to give him a perfect evening.

one for the highest number of bonds sold, and another for the largest amount of money represented in bond sales. The winner of the medal for the largest number of bonds sold was Eleanor Forster, of Harriman school, who sold 42 bonds, aggregating $1,103.50. Sigmond Seigel, Bristol Township, was winner of the medal for largest amount of money represented, his total being $7,675.39 for 30 bonds.

Mrs. John Leslie Kilcoyne, chairman of Lower Bucks County, introduced Edward J. Bloesinger, chairman of Bucks County War Finance Committee, who in turn introduced James Marvin, chairman for the school programs of the State of Pennsylvania. Mr. Marvin thanked the children for their wonderful work and presented Warren P. Snyder, superintendent of schools of Bristol borough, with a citation. Mr. Snyder expressed his appreciation both to the War Finance Committee and to the teachers and children for their splendid work during the drive. Mr. Marvin then presented all the teachers with citations for their outstanding work.

Ezra Whitman, deputy manager of the State War Finance Committee, also expressed his appreciation to the children and promised to bring a "Weazel" to Bristol which the children might examine and in which they might ride if they continue their efforts during the next school term.

The prizes were then presented by Mr. Bloesinger and Mrs. Kilcoyne, to the following children: Ramo Kline was presented with a sterling silver identification bracelet, donated by Baylies' Jewelry Shop, and given the rank of "general of Bristol" for the 7th War Loan Drive. Little "Betty" Lee Moss, age six, of the first grade of Harriman school, sold six bonds amounting to $300, for which she was presented with a nationality doll, donated by Spencer's Furniture Store. Although he has been away during most of the drive, Charles Bernardi sold $5,037.50, for which he was given honorable mention.

Mr. Bloesinger presented a citation to Mrs. E. Paul Patton, chairman of the War Finance Committee in Bensalem Township.

Pfc. John W. Thomas Is Home on Furlough

He was wounded on December 27th during the German winter offensive, and again on March 17th, near Cologne, at which time he was sent back to a hospital in England. Thomas enlisted in June, 1942, and sailed for overseas in September, 1943.

He was in General Hodge's First Army, and was attached, as a motorcycle dispatch rider, to the 3rd Armored "Spearhead" Division, a tank unit, which saw action through all the major campaigns including the Normandy invasion. Thomas attended Bensalem Township High School before his enlistment.

Sara C. Granzow capably directed her pupils in the intricate steps, with Miss "Betty" Bevan serving as pianist for the show. One of the solo dancers, Edith MacAdorey, in "The Swan" number, showed a "game" spirit when, after tripping at the footlights and falling into the orchestra pit, returned to the stage and completed her number. Discuss Airport For Sellersville in furthering an air port as a single project to serve both communities and their outlying districts. The committee is composed of Samuel Musselman, Roy Hayes, Merrill McIntyre, Wilmer Detweiler and J. Paul Bergey.

President Lester Trauger ordered a letter read from the Reading Company, in reply to correspondence by the Chamber, in which the railroad went on record as being favorable to the improvement of the station plaza at an early date. The Lehigh Valley Transit Co. also sent an assurance that the request for the repair of its road bed on Borough streets would be taken care of promptly. In fact the repairs have already begun.

The Chamber decided to sponsor and promote the improvement of the historic Stout Family Burial Ground, which, unknown even to some Perkaskie citizens, lies close behind the railroad station. Here are the headstones of former well-known members of one of the oldest families in the region, among them being the grave of a signer of the original Pennsylvania Constitution.

Among other subjects discussed was the question of store closing hours in the borough, but no decision was arrived at. In the matter of an industrial firm which desires to procure 40,000 square feet space for a building to manufacture a nationally known advertised product, the Industrial Committee was instructed to make contact and try to arrange for the erection of a suitable building. The Road and Town Committee will shortly inspect the condition of all state roads leading into the borough and will be ready to report at the September meeting. The Chamber will purchase directional road signs to be erected in the area adjacent to Perkaskie.

It was decided to have the second Monday of each month as regular meeting night for the Chamber, with no meetings in July and August. This makes the second Monday in September the next regular session.

Bicycle Riders Warned By State which provides safeguards for such vehicles.

In a statement on the subject, Secretary Harris said:

"There have been too many bicycle accidents due entirely to careless operation and disregard of the law. Our Bureau of Highway Safety reports these accidents are increasing in number, and with the approach of the summer season the situation is bound to become more serious unless the law enforcement agencies of the State and its municipalities unite in a campaign of education and enforcement to check it. Most of the accidents occurred at night because the bicycles were not equipped with the proper warning signals.

"Bicycle riders are supposed to observe safety rules the same as motor vehicle operators. Section 801-3-G of the Motor Vehicle Code provides that 'Every bicycle and every bicycle with motor attached shall be equipped with a lighted lamp on the front thereof, visible for 500 feet, and also that bicycles shall be equipped with a red reflector or lamp on the rear also visible for a distance of at least 500 feet. This red reflector must be at least one and one-half (1½) inches in diameter.

"It has recently been called to the attention of the State Police that red lens smaller than the legal size are being sold at various places in the Commonwealth. Dealers dispensing the smaller lens should explain that it does not comply with the law and should be used only for ornamental purposes. "Parents and school authorities should cooperate with the authorities in promoting safer bicycle operation because most of the casualties have been among the youth of our State. Bicycles have become so numerous on our streets and highways that they present a real traffic problem, which can only be solved by regulation, enforcement and education of the rider."

Battle for Okinawa Expected To Be Over Within Week

other spearhead was aimed at Hill 115 near the southern coast. Armored units supported these veteran infantrymen as they lashed at the remnants of between 10,000 and 12,000 Japs in the death-stand pocket.

Japanese forces, however, resisted stubbornly. To overcome this resistance, the Americans poured flaming oil from General Sherman tanks upon the enemy. In addition, massed artillery directed a withering barrage into the Jap positions. Meantime, to the west, marines of the First Division braved a hail of enemy fire from cliffs of the escarpment. These leathernecks consolidated their positions along Kunish ridge, and sent patrols ahead of their frontline positions.

Between the First Marines and the Seventh Infantry, doughboys of the 96th Army Division fought for new ground on the escarpment's upper plateau.

That the battle for Okinawa would be over within the next seven days was the opinion of Lieut. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Tenth Army commander.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, meanwhile, announced that for the third straight day there was no Japanese air opposition to the Okinawa operation.

In the other major battle of the Far Pacific, Australian veterans pushed inland from nearly-captured Brunel City, having eliminated Jap strongpoints north of the vital port on northern Borneo. According to the Melbourne radio, the Aussies were driving southwest into fabled Sarawak, aiming at the oil refinery at Tontong, 18 miles away.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that the "diggers" had secured their third airdrome since invading the Brunel Bay area of Borneo.

truck for the hospital has been approved.

Miss Hoffecker also reported that Grand View will receive the services of a second "Gray Lady" in the person of Mrs. George Mahoney, who recently completed her preparation for this important work.

Three hundred and twelve patients were treated during May, and there were 231 admissions as compared to 245 discharges. There were 35 major and 68 minor operations, 45 births and 6 deaths.

A class of twenty-eight was presented diplomas at the 57th annual commencement of North Wales High School in the auditorium of the school.

The exercises featured a series of talks by honor pupils of the class on the graduation theme, "They Bring New Glory to Old Glory." The talks were tributes to the various divisions of the armed forces of the United States.

The subject was introduced by John Stewart, Jr., and the other speeches were presented as follows: "The First to Fight," Nedra Campbell; "Our Navy," Robert Michaels; "Forward March," Elizabeth Coyle; "They Fly to Fight," Shurley Knaeffer; "Proudly They Serve," Virginia Simprini; "United We Stand, Doris McKonley, and "Background of Victory," John Stewart, Jr.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

been elected in 1936, 1940 or 1944.

IN BRIEF, this means that, notwithstanding the war, the CIO and its PAC, the 3,500,000 Federal job-holders, the American Labor party, the Communists and the large Roosevelt following aside from these groups, Mr. Roosevelt could not have been re-elected last year except for the solidity of his Negro support in the above States. That is the conviction of Mr. James A. Farley and many other political realists. It is interesting to know that this view is now confirmed by Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of the Democratic National Committee, who conducted Mr. Roosevelt's 1944 campaign and is now Postmaster General under Mr. Truman. This confirmation came in a somewhat striking way when last week a delegation of Negro leaders from the above states sponsored by the National Council of Negro Democrats called on Mr. Hannegan to demand recognition as "an integral part of the party planning and machinery" in payment for 3,000,000 Negro votes for Mr. Roosevelt in these states. The implied threat was that unless they got it they would quit the party. E. S. Cunningham, of Detroit, president of the council, declared that "when Negroes came into the Democratic party they did not make any marriage vows to stick until death do us part."

THE Negro vote, he added, in the last twelve years had followed the late President and Mrs. Roosevelt, but that the Democratic party as such has never been sold to the Negroes. To assure continued Negro support in the pivotal states, he demanded that Negroes be appointed to key Government positions, including Federal judgeships; that discrimination in the armed forces be ended; that legislation long advocated by Negro leaders be enacted. After listening to these demands, Mr. Hannegan asserted that the party "owes an obligation to those who worked for the election of the ticket last fall and is going to meet it." Concluding, he declared, "I know that without the aid of your group we would not have been successful in the last election. This is just common sense and arithmetic when you look at the cities and the vote we there."

NOTHING could be clearer than that, but it is the first time facts have been openly acknowledged by the official manager of Roosevelt campaign. Heretofore they have been denied or evaded. Now Mr. Roosevelt's own chair proclaims them and promises pay off. This should be interesting to those Southern Democrats despite their convictions, clinging to the party label because either political or social equity for the Negroes. Looking to 1948, Mr. Hannegan was reportedly as feeling that, besides solid South, his job is to hold big city machines and regain conservative support alienated the New Deal. Now he seems prepared to go farther to keep Negroes in line than any Democratic chairman has dared. It is ticklish business—this play both ends against the middle, or late, some master strategy going to break his political doing it.
